

ONE TEACHER'S CREDO

JAMES DELISLE, PH. D.

"We come from different generations and different families. I have traveled places you've never seen and you have crossed paths with people I shall never know. But the tie that unites us is stronger than any differences that may seem to divide us. I will always remember that every even and person in your life had an impact on you."

For My Students To Each of You I promise These Things:

1. I will always remember that every day you enter my classroom a part of you wants to succeed.
2. I will always remember that you have multiple ways to show me what you know.
3. I will always remember that you life is filled with passions.
4. I will always remember that although you may appear as strong as timber, parts of you are as fragile as glass.
5. I will always remember you may not be the sole owner of your strongest emotions.
6. I will always remember that your life experiences might be different than mine, but they are just as valuable.
7. I will always remember that success cannot be measured in numbers.
8. I will always remember that success requires discipline...from both of us.
9. I will always remember that teaching and learning are issues of trust.
10. I will always remember to listen.
